LIVELY GOSSIP ABOUT BASEBALL

Many Interesting Comments on Virginia League Players and Their Work.

ROWDYISM MUST BE STOPPED

Richmond Not Only City Which Has Shown That Players Must Behave.

With the avowed intention of taking two of the three games, the Lawmakers of the Roanoke yesterday at noon. To-day, to-morrow and Wednesday King Kelly will send his team against the aggregation that Manager Shaffer has in the field, and there will be some fast work. Long will likely twist to-day, Laval to-morrow and Eckstone on Wednesday. Kelly, when leaving here, said that he had signed another pitcher, and that he would be in the game down in Roanoke. With Cassidy, Willis and Smith, to say nothing of this new proposition that is on the way, "King" ought to be able to push his club's standing near the top.

Cassidy, the South Atlantic released pitcher, who is doing box work for Roanoke, is conceded by the close followers of the game here to be one of the speediest pitchers in the league. He has excellent control and curves that break at the proper place. He is the only slub artist that has made Richmond take the goose egg. Cassidy and Schumann, the latter with Barley Kain in Portsmouth, are about the best of the twirlers, the reputation of Moser to the contrary, notwithstanding.

Cornelius did something in Portsmouth Saturday that the base-ball patrons don't like to witness. He was pitching a good game until his team failed to give him good support. Then he weakened and didn't care about the number of hits. If there is one time when a pitcher should do good work in the box it is when the team behind him makes errors. It is thus with Moser, of Lynchburg, and this, perhaps, is the reason he wins his games. When the "Indefatigable" get to juggling the ball, Moser just settles down and does all the work himself. This is the true base-ball spirit, and it wins very often.

Danville has had a shaking up, and the club owners, one of whom is Manager Perry, have decided to change things around somewhat. The players on this team, individually, are good ones, but there isn't any team work to amount to anything shown. One day a man is on

BROKEN LEG RETIRES MIKE DONLIN.

It now seems certain that Mike Donlin, the great center fielder for the world's champion Giants, will not be able to play again until near the end of the present base-ball season. His leg, broken while running bases in the fourth game with the Reds in Cincinnati, is mending slowly, and there is little likelihood that he will be fit enough to relieve Brennaman and Strang, who are alternating in playing his position, before the end of August.

first, the next he plays second, and the following day probably finds him in the box as a pitcher. This shakes a team up so that games can't be won.

Holt, the third-baseman for the Roanoke team, was incapacitated for work last Friday. "King" Kelly went to the pitcher's room and found him there asleep. The veteran ball player just went out and found a tin can. Across the top of the can he tied a piece of paper and on this wrote: "Take this with you away from the city to-night." Holt left before Saturday's game.

Those who know that old war-horse of a ball player, King Kelly, tell this story on him and they offer to bet that it is a fact. Kelly was manager of a fast team at the time and had one player who was about six feet two inches tall and weighed about two hundred and twenty pounds. He was all beef and "King" didn't know exactly how to fire him. He couldn't play ball for a backstop team. It's said that Kelly deliberated over the matter and that the deliberations made him partly gray-haired. Finally, one day he saw the player standing directly beneath a window in the hotel at which the team was stopping. Kelly went to the big man's room and got his grip and a large tin can. He tied the can to the grip and then got a rope and fixed it to the grip. He lowered the grip and can out of the window on the head of the player and afterwards locked the door of the room. The big man left town immediately.

There doesn't seem to be any way to stop Lynchburg from winning all of the games. Portsmouth is there for the first three games this week and Barley Kain believes that he can take them down a notch or two. If he does there will be a great change in the standing of the clubs.

The Portsmouth Star, in an editorial, fairly roasts Third Baseman McMahon of the Norfolk team, for his disgraceful conduct on the field there last week. McMahon used language so indecent that it could not be printed, and the grand stand heard it. He was arrested, and a Norfolk county justice fined him only $2. Had he been in Richmond or Henrico, he would have been minus a good deal more of his salary.

"This said that the 'Ink Slingers' didn't have their regular team at work Saturday. The irregularities have been happening right along.

Danville plays in Norfolk to-day and the latter team will likely go another notch up the ladder. Barley Kain will have his team ahead of Benny's before the season ends, unless there is a great change in the playing of the Tobaccoists.

Richmond has the best hitting team in the league, with Norfolk perhaps playing second.

Still, Cassidy, Moser, Willis and Schumann are perhaps the best pitchers in the Virginia League. They have shown what they can do.

Blorman, for the Danville ball team, had to leave Lynchburg Saturday night without the rest of the players, to escape arrest for disorderly conduct on the ball field. He protested against a decision at second base and wanted to do things to umpire Moore. The Lynchburg enthusiasts didn't approve of such conduct as Blorman's, and a warrant was sworn out for him. Amateurs will learn before the season ends that the umpire must be treated with respect, and that the crowds in all the Virginia cities will not tolerate rowdism.

In a letter to the public, Manager Charlie Shaffer, of the Richmond team, apologizes for the conduct on the Richmond diamond last Wednesday, and assures the base-ball lovers that there will be no repetition of it. His letter is an open and manly one.
